THE RIGHT TRACK FILM COMING 2025

NEW YORK, NY; Jan. 31, 2025 – A new feature-length documentary on sex trafficking and prostitution in North America, from the perspectives of survivors, will release Summer 2025, directed by Shareen Anderson.

The film is produced by Fountainhead Production in association with Fort Greene Filmworks.

Synopsis: The Right Track is a gripping documentary that shines light on the relentless fight to end sex trafficking and human exploitation across North America. At its core is the movement to legislate the Survivor Model—a transformative approach that decriminalizes prostituted individuals while maintaining strict penalties for pimps, traffickers, and sex buyers who drive the commercial sex industry. Through powerful narratives from survivors, advocates, policymakers, and law enforcement, the film delves into the heart of the crisis, revealing the courage that survivors require to escape “the life” and rebuild, either off the track or out of the brothel system. It explores what’s needed to bring traffickers and buyers to justice and how trafficking thrives not just in far flung places, but right in our own neighborhoods. The Right Track is both a call to action and a testament to the resilience of survivors fighting for change.

Short Synopsis: The Right Track is a powerful documentary that shines light on the fight to end sex trafficking in North America. It champions the Survivor Model, decriminalizing victims and prosecuting traffickers, and inspires us through stories of survivors fighting for change.
